was in a cave. There were people in the cave.
There were those old broken laptops. broke the laptop and it was a kid's birthday present. If I broke it I would get a new one and I did. But what was the snake enclosure.
Chewed the ladder. Took out. Eat the snake enclosure.
Not only the snake enclosure.
How the ladder is people with the ladder
There were no more people so disappointed
No more people like fish
with no gills

know now this is not yet an epitaph: recall the smell of asphalt and of highway roadside vegetation recall the wild sky as it thrashes, the living hum of water on rock separate the sound of tires from engines find that shifting gravel roars too find somewhere deep a smooth stone look above you, see the marble sunlight savor the cold and the dark for a time (the ever present groan of the spheres as hulking great mass silently rolls and yet in that coldest void, light, sound the living hum of radio static the drifting clouds of fluorescent dust) know now the depth of it all — find yourself tethered to nothing recall the distant sound of a passenger jet in your living room, two years old, and your first taste of that magnitude never doubt that everyone on board arrived at the same destination see now the sunlight cast across your iris and how the pillars of creation are the same
